NATIONAL RESEARCH COUNCIL ARCHIVES

ASSOCIATE COMMITTEES

OFFICE OF
ASSOCIATE COMMITTEES SECRETARIAT

Finding Aid

Prepared by Lynn Delgaty

for NRC Archives

in June, 1993

Revised Feb. 2012- By Steven Leclair

Administrative History

The Associate Committees played a key role in the early research work carried out by the Council. After the NRC Laboratories were established in 1932, the Committees continued to play an important role in coordinating research activities within the three main sectors of the scientific community: government, academic and industry. Associate committees are never allowed to outlive their usefulness. A committee is formed whenever a new problem appears; when the task is completed and/or when the work can be more effectively continued by some other organization, the committee disbands.

An associate committee is self-governed; it is authorized by and reports to the Council. Except for travelling expenses, members of an associate committee are unpaid. In 1969, the Council established the Associate Committee's Secretariat to assist the Committees with their correspondence and activities.

Custodial History

This collection was transferred to NRC Archives in 1992 from the Division of Administration, office of the Associate Committee's Secretariat.

Scope and Content

While it was impossible to reconstruct the original order of the collection, there was some evidence to suggest that the files had been maintained according to the activities of the Office of the Associate Committee's Secretariat, rather than those of the individual committees. Consequently, the files have been arranged in the following series: membership, minutes of meetings, general correspondence, annual reports, miscellaneous reports and newsletters. They are grouped according to associate committee within each series and arranged in chronological order within each subseries:

- 1.01-2.13 (42 cm.) Correspondence - Membership 1970-1980
- 3.01-4.51 (42 cm.) Minutes of meetings 1965-1982
- 5.01-5.16 (08 cm.) Correspondence - General 1975-1982

5.17-5.42 (13 cm.) Annual reports 1980-1982
6.01-6.21 (16 cm.) Reports, proposals, briefs 1976-1985
6.22-6.28 (05 cm.) Newsletters 1980-1981
